

Case Study: Environetics

At a Glance

Parallel Edge began helping Environetics at its inception in December of 2009. Environetics is in the Architectural/Engineering/Interior design business and was experiencing rapid growth that required a more hands on approach by the IT Professionals at Parallel Edge. During the inception of the company, Parallel Edge helped set up the company's servers, network, workstations, and VoIP phone systems.

The Context

Environetics was in the middle of a growth phase and did not have the necessary technology infrastructure or processes in place to handle it effectively. Parallel Edge came in and recommended very specific actions that would help with a variety of factors, which included the speed of information transfer to workstations, upgrading the VoIP system, monitoring storage capability, as well as developing a homegrown method of offsite backup that utilizes Environetics' satellite office.

Current Status

Parallel Edge is currently onsite between two and three days per week to handle most technical problems. When additional help is necessary, Parallel Edge will work remotely if possible to address those issues, but will promptly send someone out if necessary. Environetics recently renovated and expanded its office, which required employees and IT equipment to be relocated throughout the office during the project. Parallel Edge ensured productivity was not lost and all systems functioned properly throughout the duration of the renovation and expansion.

The Results

Over the past five years, Environetics has grown from 25 to 65 people and Parallel Edge has helped make that growth a seamless transition. Additional system capabilities like backup file techniques and an internal platform for continuous expansion and growth have helped lead to a smoother process for handling such rapid growth. Employees are now more productive and happier with the capability to now work remotely using a VPN connection through a LogMeIn methodology. This has helped Environetics be more respectful of employees personal needs and maintain a productive workplace.
